Italy's Peasant Wizard Continues to Increase in Power.

WONDERFUL MYSTERIOUS FORCE

Ensapla Paladina Possessed of a Strange Electrical Personality-Influence Over Inanimute Objects-Articles Moved at Will-Scientists Convinced but Cannot Account for It.

Pretty nearly the whole of the scientific world has heard of Eusapia Paladino by this time, says the Washington Post psychology the fat, dumpy, Italian pens-ant woman has been a veritable gold mine of surprises. Unbellevers in the supernatural would almost be willing to change their minds could they see her perform the marvelous doings which within the past year have convuised cold, clear-headed men of science in all the great centers of Europe. She has been studied and analyzed over and over but not one of these men of brains has been able to logically account for her mysterious powers. If she had lived a hundred years ago she would probably have been condemned to the stake as a witch. As it as he is the greatest living puzzle before the eyes of the world today.

Her strange powers are easily described, but no explanation of their source can be offered. She postesses some peculiar force in her body which is potent enough to move weighty objects standing at some distance from her. It is described as a species of electrical current, emanating from her body and taking hold of the desired object, and moving the latter about as she wills. Her force is not confined to a single object at the same time. She can move a dozen things from different parts of a large room, causing them to fly through the air at the same instant. This has just been demonstrated, and it adds a new chapter to the already long list which the scientists are trying to puzzle out.

Her Wonderful Powers.
Some time ago Eusapia was taken to England, and she gave a number of exhibitions in the presence of a number of English, French and German scientists, who adopted a variety of of precautions to detect her in any fraud. No fraud was discovered, but her doings were so remarkable and unnatural that some of the scientists, after vainiy attempting to trace the causes of the phenomena, decided that there must have been fraud, and so stamped her as a vulgar trickster. But these accusations were so groundless of fact that little attention was paid to them, and the fame of the Italian woman to-day is greater than ever.

In Paris she has just given an example of her powers which is regarded as more remarkable than any of the others, because it shows the surprising energy of the force she exerts. Heretofore she has only attempted to move small things, like causing a letter weighing machine to move up or down, and dumping the keys of a piano placed at some distance from her.

In this last exhibition there were a number of scientific men present, and they adopted many precautions against he exercise of fraud or the introduction of any outside agency. The wife of one of the scientists had dressed the peasant woman in a tight-fitting symnasium suit to guard against the possibility of her asing any concealed mechanism in performing her wonders.

In the drawing room where the tests were made Eusapia was seated in a light hamboo chair, entirely devoid of anything which would conceal the smallest thing. The peasant woman always falls into a trance when giving her exhibitions, and when she had reached this stage one of the scientists gat down on his knees on the floor and held her leasing hunderly at the back of the chair to watch hold of her hands and held them in a tight grip, while another stood immediately at the back of the chair to watch hold of her hands and held them in a tight grip, while another stood immediately at the back of the chair to watch hold of her hands and held them in a tight grip, while another stood immediately at the back of the chair to watch for any suspicious movement. A fourth stood right in front of her for the woman was a heavy arm-chair, placed in the recess of the window. It began to move about in spassmodic jumps, and t

All this time the toy plane was chat-tering away, and the table leg was pounding on the floor and the armchalt tering away, and the table leg was pounding on the floor and the armchalt was moving up and down. The sleep of the woman seemed to grow deeper and the noise greater. Then came the strangest part of the test. The window curtains broke loose from the pole and came on a table near Eusapia. Then the toy plano salled through the air, striking one of the watchers on the head and landing near the curtains. While the plano was still in the air Eusapia got up from the chair and it started on a flight through the air, first backward and upward, and eventually landing in the lap of a man who had been sitting right in front of her.

This is regarded as the most remarkable of the many examples which the woman has given of her powers. Her history, aside from the strange force she possesses, is simply told. She was born in Naples forty-one years ago, of poor parents. When eight years old her father was killed by brigands, and this traggely had a strange effect on her nerves, which, in a measure, may necount for her powers. She became hysterical and was often the victim of hallucinations, seeing strange faces staring at her from the walls and ceilings. Then she began to tall into trances, and spiritualists who heard of her induced her to take part in seances when she was but thirteen years of age. She tired of this after a while, but when teenly-two years old she again became under the influence of a spiritualist.

Now she has little or nothing to do with spiritualism. Her strange powers first attracted attention about seven years ago, and since then she has been in every large eity of Europe at the invitation of scientists, who have found in her a most interesting study.

Boston Traveller: The avidity with which the new Spanish loan is being snapped up is said to be an evidence that patriotien is at white heat in the inned of the hidaligos. His may or may not be true, but the fact remains that the government is finding no difficulty is raising money for war purposes.

It is realized that the last hope for Spain's retention of Cuba lies in the success of the campaign which has just been inaugurated by Captain. General Weyler. The Spannards know that the presence of McKindey in the presidential chair means a quite different policy from the present in this country, it is the subjugation of Cuba now or never. Meanwhile Weyler is in the hills of Spain and Macco is in retreat. This may mean that Macco is afraid of open conflict or it may mean that Weyler is heling drawn into a tran. Subsequent events will prove and will be awaited with the most intense interest by every lover of freedom.

ASCHOOL-MASTER'S TESTIMONY

From the American, Newark, Obio: Mr. Fred, M. Wimple, a well-known school teacher, of Perry, Mich, told a reporter of the Daily American of the wonderful cure Dr. Williams' Plnk Pills had effected in his case, Mr. Wimple has lived near Perry all his life and is highly respected. The following is his story:

highly respected. The following is his story:

"For the last twelve years I have followed the profession of school-teacher, and taught in and about Perry until 1852, when suffering from catarrh I had to resign and go south. I went to Amite City, La., where I caught jaundice, but the catarrh disappeared. no top of the jaundice came chronk diarrhoea, and a peculiar disorder of the blood. Of course I had to give up my school and everything else. My mouth broke out into large sores, and one of the strangest things was that if I cut myself hardly any blood would ilow. I was in Louisiana about one year, and then on the advice of one of the four doctors who had been attending me, on May 2, 1895, returned to my home in Perry.

"Until August, 1895, I had one physician in Owesse and one in Perry, who declared they could do nothing for me, as my case was beyond their skilli.
"While in Louisiana I was recommended by a lady to take Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and I did take two boxes, when it was discovered by the physicians and they would not let me take any more, though they certainly benefited me.
"Now that the Michigan doctors de-that the Michigan doctors declared they could not help me, I manually turned back to Pink Pills. At this time I weighed 129 pounds was pale and emuclated, with chronic diarrhoca, blood and becipient paralysis of the disorder and incipient paralysis of the arms. Before I had taken two boxes the numboness in my arms was gone, and I began once more to enjoy refreshing sleep. Then the diarrhoea stopped, I began to look placid and bealthy and by the time I had taken twelve boxes I was a healthy man, weighing 181 pounds. I taught my school all last winter, and this spring, and now this August, 1896, I have done more work on the farm than I have done in years.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Meaning the Passing of Bryan-Chroni-cles of the Blac and Pall of the Paynin in Politics.

Frank Crane in New York Advertiser: Upon a summer day it fell that the Upon a summer day it fell that the many barbarian tribes throughout all the land met in the great city by the lake, there to take counsel together how they night wage war upon Christendom. Largo hordes came from the south and from the west. A few great chiefs, who in former time had held bigh, rank among the heathen, came from the east, and these being wealthy, and otherwise smooth citizens, thought that they could boss the congregated warriors dead easy; but when, as they arrayed themselves in gay apparel, putting on flaunting garments called clean shirts and presented themselves to the multitude and began to give orders and advice, there arose murmurs of "what 'cill?" and the like sayings.

Then began the host to cast about for some leader who could command their forces in the war that they had in mind. And there was no leader. Neither could they find any excuse or battle cry which they could make use of to excite the proplet to join their insurrection; for that, in their previous incursions, the stuffing had been pretty well knocked out of them. many barbarian tribes throughout all

As, therefore, they debated among themselves and of a truth thought the lig was up with them, and they must perforce return unto their homes with no booty or pillage, there did deave into the camp a swart and lusty youth from the west, Knight Bryan. He came from the region of the Platte river, where travelers who have thither penetrated do say the Populist is found, which is a parious beast feeding upon goldbugs by land and hunting Wall street sharks by water, and also hath a hairy countenance and Rillikindes breath. The Populist begetfeth upon the Democrat the strange creature men call Popocrat, which, as its name showeth, is a hybrid like the mule, that, as the historian Emory Storrs saith, "hath neither pride in ancestry nor hope in posterity."

When that the young man Bryan arrived he went to the high men and captains and said to them that he was willing to settle the whole business and compromise on himself for President, and that he, on his part, would run if they, on their part, would support himwhich was fair and even. Whereupon the captains, when they had recovered their wind, admired the beautiful and thrifty gail of the youth, but answered mockingly, saying: "Aber nit"—which nour tongue menneth to the same import as "Nay, may, Pauline." Furthermore, they said in scorn: "Shoot" and "Go away, wee-wee!"

Advises Use of Dr. Greene's Nervura Because He Knows It Will Cure.

Lieut.-Governor Fletcher Bids the Weak, Nervous and Discouraged to Hope, for the Wonderful Dr. Greene's Nervura Will Surely

The world believes its great men. Their word is accepted as truth, their xample followed, their advice taken. Knowing this fact, the illustrious lieutenant-governor of Vermont, Hon. Henry A. Fletcher, of Proctorville, Vt., who is the descendant of a long line of statesmen and rulers, tells the people if they wish to get well, if they desire to get back their health and strength, to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy because he knows from personal experience, from its use in his own family and among his friends, and from having observed time and again its wonderful curative powers, that it will surely and certainly cure, that it will give strength to the weak, strong nerves to the nervous, natural refreshing sleep to the sleepless, perfect digestion to the dyspeptic, rich, red blood to the feeble, freedom from pain to the rheumatic, in fact, sound and vigorous health to all Lieutenant-Governor Fletcher's family

NEW KIND OF SHEEP. An Rem of Great Interest to the Wool

An Item of Great Interest to the Wool Industry.

BERNELY, Cal., Nov. 20.—The agricultural department of the University of California is raising a new kind of Sheep. The experiment station at Paso Robles has succeeded in breeding a variety of sheep that will mean much to the wool and meat markets. It is the result of the cross breeding of Pecsians and Merina. Experiments along the same lines, though not so complete, were conducted by George Washington with marked success.

Two years ago three full blooded rams were received from the Persian government and the experiments were commenced in cross breeding. The offspring resulted in a variety, admirably adapted to the California climate, showing wool and meat above the quality of any yet obtained. They were colorder white, reddish brown and black, the black being held especially valuable to commercial purposes. The wool was of a texture between the Persian and merino, the average of length being eight inches. Recently the first sample of the wool was offered for sale in San Francisco and brought an advance of four cents on the usual price for a pound. The new species attain a tremendous size and are very broad back-ed.
